Kentucky Academic Standards World Language

INTRODUCTION

Background

Kentucky is multilingual. With over 140,000 speakers of languages from around the world and billions of dollars in world investments, world language learning and proficiency play an important role in ensuring the success of Kentucky students at home and abroad. Exports by Kentucky businesses continue to break records. To stay competitive, Kentucky needs a multilingual workforce and an international mindset. It is crucial to develop a workforce that can communicate proficiently in more than one language and that understands the perspectives of others. International relationship marketing relies on cultural understanding and communication; to be successful, one must speak the customer's/business partner's language in any field.

Language acquisition also has been shown to increase students' cognitive abilities, mental plasticity and economic opportunities (U.S. Department of Education, 2015). Through this acquisition, students have the potential to earn recognition in the form of the Global Seal of Biliteracy, Global Citizenship Certificate or Advanced Placement (AP)/International Baccalaureate (IB) credit to advance their hiring potential and demonstrate global competency. As a result, world language learning and proficiency are vital aspects of learning and success for students in the Commonwealth to increase their adaptivity, competitiveness, openness to taking risks, and understanding of how they fit in their communities locally and beyond.

Decades into the 21st century, Kentuckians find themselves in places where they are poised to connect to a plurality of cultures through language. Language proficiency is a goal that makes this possible. Equity in access and opportunity affords this possibility to all Kentuckians. Language study, regardless of students' backgrounds and experiences, enhances cultural perspectives, traditions and knowledge. Additionally, language acquisition directly impacts and enhances a speaker's first language literacy (L1). The inclusion of language programs in Kentucky schools offers a powerful social-emotional tool for students of multiple backgrounds. Whether through traditional language classes or dual language immersion programs, a focus on additive bilingualism and multilingualism supports an equity of experience and opportunity for all students. The study of world languages further contributes to students' overall academic preparedness. Aside from the cognitive benefits and its role in student college, career and community readiness, acquisition of additional languages promotes literacy and gives opportunities for students to be biliterate or multiliterate. Thus, through the acquisition of additional languages, students become empowered and equipped.

Kentucky's Vision for Students

The Kentucky Board of Education's (KBE) vision is that each and every student is empowered and equipped to pursue a successful future. To equip and empower students, the following capacity and goal statements frame instructional programs in Kentucky schools. They were established by the Kentucky Education Reform Act (KERA) of 1990, as found in Kentucky Revised Statute (KRS) 158.645 and KRS 158.6451. All students shall have the opportunity to acquire the following capacities and learning goals:

- Communication skills necessary to function in a complex and changing civilization;
- Knowledge to make economic, social and political choices;
- Core values and qualities of good character to make moral and ethical decisions throughout life;
- Understanding of governmental processes as they affect the community, the state and the nation;
- Sufficient self-knowledge and knowledge of their mental health and physical wellness;
- Sufficient grounding in the arts to enable each student to appreciate their cultural and historical heritage;
- Sufficient preparation to choose and pursue their life's work intelligently; and
- Skills to enable students to compete favorably with students in other states.

Furthermore, schools shall:

- Expect a high level of achievement from all students.
- Develop their students' ability to:
 - Use basic communication and mathematics skills for purposes and situations they will encounter throughout their lives;
 - Apply core concepts and principles from mathematics, the sciences, the arts, the humanities, social studies and practical living studies to situations they will encounter throughout their lives;
 - Become self-sufficient individuals of good character exhibiting the qualities of altruism, citizenship, courtesy, hard work, honesty, human worth, justice, knowledge, patriotism, respect, responsibility and self-discipline;
 - Become responsible members of a family, work group or community, including demonstrating effectiveness in community service;
 - Think and solve problems in school situations and in a variety of situations they will encounter in life;
 - Connect and integrate experiences and new knowledge from all subject matter fields with what students have previously learned and build on past learning experiences to acquire new information through various media sources; and
 - Express their creative talents and interests in visual arts, music, dance and dramatic arts.
- Increase student attendance rates.
- Increase students' graduation rates and reduce dropout and retention rates.

- Reduce physical and mental health barriers to learning.
- Be measured on the proportion of students who make a successful transition to work, postsecondary education and the military.

The Kentucky Department of Education (KDE) also encourages schools to use the Model Curriculum Framework to inform development of curricula related to world language courses. The Model Curriculum Framework (page 2) encourages educators to meet the challenge of helping all students master standards, have a clear vision of what best practice teaching and learning is and a clear road map to follow throughout the year (Ainsworth, 2010).

In the process of developing high-quality curriculum, Kentucky schools and districts must consider the following questions:

- What is the difference between standards and curriculum and instructional resources?
- What is meant by a guaranteed, viable curriculum?
- How do standards, curriculum and instructional resources work together to help create equity for all students in Kentucky?

Legal Basis

The following Kentucky Revised Statutes (KRS) and Kentucky Administrative Regulations (KAR) provide a legal basis for this publication:

KRS 156.160 Promulgation of administrative regulations by the Kentucky Board of Education

With the advice of the Local Superintendents Advisory Council (LSAC), the KBE shall promulgate administrative regulations establishing standards that public school districts shall meet in student, program, service and operational performance. These regulations shall comply with the expected outcomes for students and schools set forth in KRS 158:6451.

KRS 158.6453 Review of Academic Standards and Assessments

Beginning in fiscal year 2017-2018, and every six (6) years thereafter, the Kentucky Department of Education shall implement a process for reviewing Kentucky's academic standards and the alignment of corresponding assessments for possible revision or replacement to ensure alignment with post-secondary readiness standards necessary for global competitiveness and with state career and technical education standards. The revisions to the content standards shall:

- Focus on critical knowledge, skills, and capacities needed for success in the global economy;
- Result in fewer but more in-depth standards to facilitate mastery learning;
- Communicate expectations more clearly and concisely to teachers, parents, students and citizens;
- Be based on evidence-based research;

- Consider international benchmarks; and
- Ensure that the standards are aligned from elementary to high school to post-secondary education so that students can be successful at each education level.

704 KAR 3:305 Individual Learning Plan (ILP)

Section 2. (1) A district shall implement an advising and guidance process throughout the middle and high schools to provide support for the development and implementation of an individual learning plan for each student.

Kentucky Academic Standards for World Language established in 704 KAR Chapter 8:110

The administrative regulation adopts into law the World Language Standards.

Standards Creation Process

The standards creation process focused heavily on educator involvement. Kentucky teachers understand elementary and secondary academic standards must align with postsecondary readiness standards and with state career and technical education standards. This process helped to ensure students are prepared for the jobs of the future and can compete with those students from other states and nations.

The World Language Advisory Panel was composed of nine teachers. The function of the Advisory Panel was to review the standards and make recommendations for changes to a Review Committee. The World Language Standards Review Committee was composed of six teachers. The function of the Review Committee was to review findings and make recommendations to revise or replace existing standards.

Members of the Advisory Panel and Review Committee were selected based on their expertise in the area of world language, as well as being a practicing teacher in the field of world languages. The selection committee considered statewide representation, as well as, when choosing writers.

Writers' Vision Statement

The Kentucky World Language Advisory Panel and the Review Committee coalesced around a vision for Kentucky students. The teacher writers believed in providing equitable opportunities and capabilities to use language and cultural knowledge to make friendships, develop and grow, and to hone the skills necessary to become successful global citizens. Kentucky language teachers should consider culture as the key component, or hub, around which language acquisition is provided. This helps ensure a rich exposure and understanding of both people, places and practices of the target culture, in turn enabling learners to reflect on these aspects of their own culture. This empowers students to become individuals who are inquirers, empathetic, risk-takers, reflexive and good communicators. The Kentucky Academic Standards for World Language differ from the previous versions in that they intentionally push the focus of culture to the core of the language learning experience; the global competencies are highlighted in more detail, and sample topics related to equity (racial, LGBTQ+, etc.) are specifically included. This document is the result of collaboration and numerous revisions to provide support for the success of world language learners.

The KDE provided the following foundational documents to inform the writing team's work:

- American Council on the Teaching of Foreign Languages. (2012). ACTFL proficiency guidelines 2012. Available from, <https://www.actfl.org/resources/actfl-proficiency-guidelines-2012>
- American Council on the Teaching of Foreign Languages. (2017). NCSSFL-ACTFL can-do statements: Performance indicators for language learners. Available from, <https://www.actfl.org/resources/ncssf-actfl-can-do-statements>
- Kaushanskaya, M., Yoo, J., & Marian, M. The effect of second-language experience on native-language processing (2012). Vigo International Journal of Applied Linguistics. 2011; 8;54-77.
- The National Standards Collaborative Board. (2015). World-Readiness Standards for Learning Languages. 4th ed. Alexandria, VA: Author.
- Review of state academic standards documents and frameworks (Colorado, Delaware, New Jersey, Ohio, Jefferson County Public Schools and District of Columbia Public Schools).

The standards also were informed by feedback from the public and world language community. When the Kentucky Academic Standards for World Language were open for public feedback, 76 comments were provided through the initial survey and 39 comments were provided in the second survey. Furthermore, the standards received feedback from current world language teachers, retired teachers, administrators, institutes of higher education, parent/guardians and community members. At each stage of the feedback process, data-informed changes were made to ensure the standards would focus on critical knowledge, skills and capacities needed for success in the global economy.

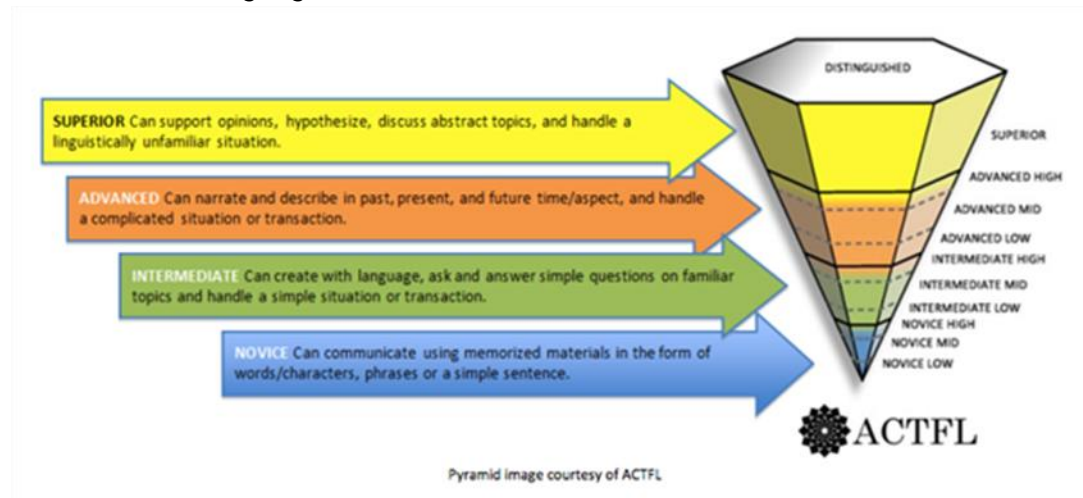

Design Considerations

Design decisions were informed by reviews of current evidenced-based practices, state and national world language standards, and public comments regarding the Kentucky Academic Standards for World Language.

- The standards progression was based upon the ACTFL proficiency levels and the NCSSFL-ACTFL can do statements. Acquiring a language is progressive and requires time; ideally programs offer students opportunities for language acquisition in early childhood. The Federal Government's Inter-Agency Language Roundtable (ILR) delineates expected times for learning languages, based on specific language groupings (<https://www.languagetesting.com/how-long-does-it-take>). It should be noted that these times are in optimal conditions the National Council of State Supervisors for Languages (NCSSFL) and American Council on the Teaching of Foreign Languages (ACTFL) Can Do Statements point to the undeniable role of student motivation in the process. However, the ILR times can serve to underline the importance of time in growing student proficiency level. In 2012, the American Council on the Teaching of Foreign Languages (ACTFL) articulated the progression of language proficiency development in the ACTFL Proficiency Guidelines 2012 (https://www.actfl.org/sites/default/files/pdfs/public/ACTFLProficiencyGuidelines2012_FINAL.pdf).

- Function, Accuracy/Comprehensibility, Content/Context and Text Type differ from Novice to Intermediate to Advance to Superior, and specific markers denote the language user’s proficiency level when assessed. The progressive nature of language acquisition forms the spine of the National World-Readiness Standards for Learning Languages and the Kentucky Academic Standards for World Language.

- The National World-Readiness Standards for Learning Languages identifies five Goal Areas: Communication, Culture, Connections, Comparisons and Communities. These five “C” goal areas are accepted by the profession as integrated and interlocking (ACTFL, 2017). In 2017, the National Council of State Supervisors for Languages (NCSSFL) along with ACTFL published the NCSSFL-ACTFL Can-Do Statements for Intercultural Communication, referring to intercultural communication as “the use of culturally appropriate verbal and nonverbal skills to build relationships with people of different cultures.” The Kentucky Academic Standards for World Language, therefore, matches the national document in expanding both on communication and intercultural communication.

- The KAS for World Language provides connections to other content area standards to facilitate cross curricular learning and instruction. It also seeks to integrate the additional goal areas of Connections, Comparisons and Communities. As these are interconnected, the sample learning targets for these goal areas can be easily identified within a variety of categories. Through it all, culture and interculturality serve as primary drivers of instruction. Additionally, equity and inclusion guided the development of this document. In accordance with the unifying goals of world language education, it is crucial to recognize the value of world languages for all students.
- In order to match the World-Readiness Standards for Learning Languages and to align the document to the needs of American Sign Language learning, language has been introduced to account for receptive and expressive signing. These have been included in sub-headings for sample learning targets in interpretive as “viewed,” interpersonal as “signing” and presentational as “signed.”
- The teacher writers included types of sample activities to empower teachers to use a variety of inclusive communicative and cultural topics.

The Kentucky Academic Standards (KAS) are Standards, not Curriculum

The Kentucky Academic Standards for World Language outline the minimum standards Kentucky students should learn at the conclusion of the world language program. The standards address a foundational framework of what is to be learned, but do not address how learning experiences are to be designed or what resources should be used.

A standard represents a goal or outcome of an educational program; standards are vertically aligned expected outcomes for all students. The standards do not dictate the design of a lesson plan or how units should be organized. The standards establish a statewide baseline of what students should know and be able to do at the conclusion of a grade or grade-span. The instructional program should emphasize the development of students' abilities to acquire and apply the standards. The curriculum must ensure that appropriate accommodations are made for diverse populations of students found within Kentucky schools.

These standards are not a set of instructional or assessment tasks, but rather statements of what students should be able to master after instruction. Decisions on how best to help students meet these program goals are left to local school districts and teachers. Curriculum includes the vast array of instructional materials, readings, learning experiences and local mechanisms of assessment, including the full body of content knowledge to be covered, all of which are to be selected at the local level according to Kentucky law.

Translating the Standards into Curriculum

The KDE does not require specific curriculum or strategies to be used to teach the Kentucky Academic Standards (KAS). Local schools and districts choose to meet those minimum required standards using a locally adopted curriculum according to KRS 158.6453, which outlines the SBDM's role in determining curriculum. As educators implement academic standards, they, along with community members, must guarantee 21st-century readiness that will ensure all learners are transition-ready. To achieve this, Kentucky students need a curriculum designed and structured for a rigorous, relevant and personalized learning experience, including a wide variety of learning opportunities. The Kentucky Model Curriculum Framework is a resource to help an instructional supervisor, principal and/or teacher leader revisit curriculum planning, offering background information and exercises to generate “future-oriented” thinking while suggesting a process for designing and reviewing local curriculum.

Organization of the Standards

The architecture most effectively expresses the elements of focus for the Kentucky Academic Standards for World Language. The document is divided into several key components, including goal areas, modes, standards, guiding questions, proficiency benchmarks, performance indicators and sample learning targets that are integral aspects of language learning.

- Goal Areas – Communication, Intercultural Communication, Connections, Comparisons and Communities
- Modes – The three modes of communication including interpretive (reading, listening, and viewing), interpersonal (speaking, writing, and signing), and finally presentational (speaking, writing, and signing). There are two modes of intercultural communication: investigate (products and practices) and interact (language and behavior). Abbreviations used are:
 - IR/IL - Interpretative Reading and Interpretive Listening
 - IS/IL/IW - Interpersonal Speaking, Interpersonal Listening and Interpersonal Writing
 - PW/PS - Presentational Writing and Presentational Speaking
 - INV- Investigate Products and Practices
 - INT- Interact Language and Behaviors

The Connections, Comparisons and Communities are interwoven throughout the standards document as they provide the context for the modes of communication.

- Standard – The mission and vision that drives all language-learning decisions.
- Guiding Questions – Ask what the students should be able to accomplish using a mode of communication.

- Proficiency Benchmarks - Establish the expectations for learner performance at the identified proficiency level and support both students and educators in goal setting. Major proficiency levels are subsequently divided by sub-levels (Low, Mid and High) to match the ACTFL Proficiency Guidelines 2012. The proficiency benchmarks are listed with their respective performance indicators and sample learning targets.
- Performance Indicators – “I can” statements aligned to the guiding questions demonstrating what students should be able to do at that proficiency level.
- Sample Learning Targets – Examples of ways to illustrate language performance in a variety of contexts that can help inform instruction. Sample learning targets include a variety of examples that can relate back to the additional goals but are not exhaustive and not limited to only one goal area.

How to Read the Coding of the Standards and Performance Indicators

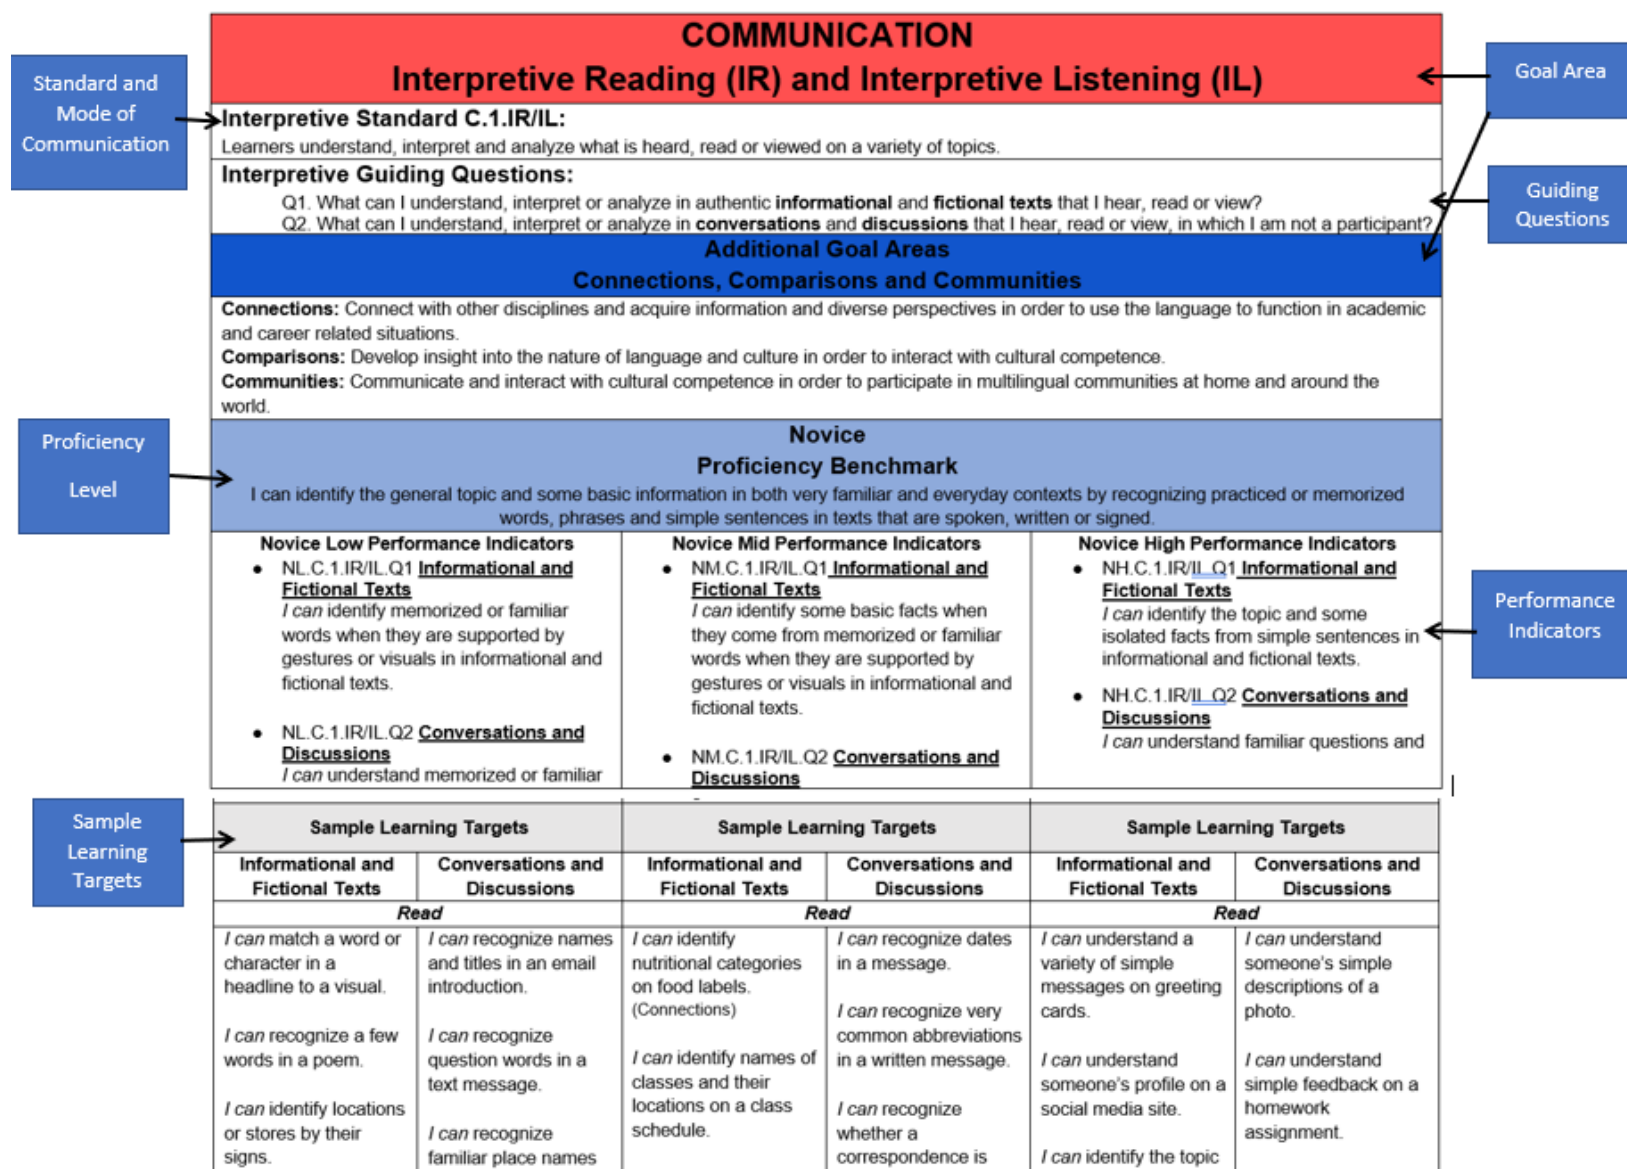

- The Standard coding begins with the goal area, followed by the standard number and then by the mode of communication.

- Within each Standard, the Performance Indicator begins with the performance level, goal area, followed by the standard number and then by the mode of communication.

COMMUNICATION

Interpretive Reading (IR) and Interpretive Listening (IL)

Interpretive Standard C.1.IR/IL:

Learners understand, interpret and analyze what is heard, read or viewed on a variety of topics.

Interpretive Guiding Questions:

Q1. What can I understand, interpret or analyze in authentic informational and fictional texts that I hear, read or view?

Q2. What can I understand, interpret or analyze in conversations and discussions that I hear, read or view, in which I am not a participant?

Additional Goal Areas

Connections, Comparisons and Communities

Connections: Connect with other disciplines and acquire information and diverse perspectives in order to use the language to function in academic and career related situations.

Comparisons: Develop insight into the nature of language and culture in order to interact with cultural competence.

Communities: Communicate and interact with cultural competence in order to participate in multilingual communities at home and around the world.

COMMUNICATION

Interpersonal Speaking, Listening and Writing (IS/IL/IW)

Interpersonal Standard C.2.IS/IL/IW:

Learners interact and negotiate meaning in spoken, signed or written conversations to share information, reactions, feelings and opinions.

Interpersonal Guiding Questions:

- Q1. How can I exchange information and ideas in conversations?
- Q2. How can I meet my needs or address situations in conversations?
- Q3. How can I express, react to and support preferences and opinions in conversations?

Additional Goal Areas

Connections, Comparisons and Communities

Connections: Connect with other disciplines and acquire information and diverse perspectives in order to use the language to function in academic and career related situations.

Comparisons: Develop insight into the nature of language and culture in order to interact with cultural competence.

Communities: Communicate and interact with cultural competence in order to participate in multilingual communities at home and around the world.

Appendix A: Writing and Review Committees

The writing team, composed of current world language teachers, represented both rural and urban settings – including representation from several different regions of the state. While these teachers taught a variety of courses and grade levels throughout their careers, the selected committee members were currently teaching courses related to the standards development process: world language. Additionally, the selected writers served in many roles in their schools, world language community and a wide variety of professional organizations. To ensure fidelity to the standards, the writing committee provided feedback at all stages of the development process. The writing and review committee members listed below represented Kentucky’s best as evidenced by their countless qualifications.
